Count George Károlyi

About the location

Fehérvárcsurgó is in the north-western part of Fejér county, 20 km from Székesfehérvár, situated in a beautiful countryside. The 6000 m² Károlyi Castle is located far from the bustling, rushing city, yet easily accessible, offering high quality services for guests who wish to relax. The castle has a 50-hectare park and arboretum with oasis with a small lake and numerous walking trails.

Count György Károlyi (Vienna, 28 March 1802 - Budapest, 9 November 1877), chief deputy, royal counselor, royal chief court master, politician, patron of the arts, one of the founding members of the Hungarian Academy of Sciences.

Besides István Széchenyi and Miklós Wesselényi, he was one of the greatest figures of the reform era.

We invite you to his castle for a dinner.

The program

After the arrival (14:00), checking -in, and a welcome drink a 45-minute guided tour of the Castle is organized from 14:30, followed by a short free program, which can be a walk in the park or an exciting game of ping-pong and foosball in the Castle basement. At 17.00, authentic costumes will arrive, from which everyone chooses and dresses up for the evening's playful activities, followed by a fancy gala dinner appropriate to the period. A professional dresser will assist you in choosing and professionally fitting your outfits! During the evening, participants will be able to capture the funniest moments on a selfie camera, and after dinner, a retro jukebox will be used to party to a selection of retro tunes under disco lights. The next day, after breakfast, it is time to go back home.
